

EP. 150 EY'S KRIS PEDERSON WITH HOST DON YAEGER

(6:30) A board is there to govern, to ask _____, and to check in with the management team. You are not there to run the company. There is a fine line between governance and management.

(9:30) Reflection Question: How can developing a genuine interest in and remembering the names of your employees' spouses, kids, and pets enhance your leadership effectiveness and foster a more connected and supportive work environment? Create a log in your phone to keep track of these personal anecdotes.

(10:30) I try to call people out in public events. I will bring a junior staff to a conference who did all of the _____ for me and I might call her out from the stage: "Hey Allison, Thank you. Great data point."

(15:00) Find ways that the younger guns can help the old guard and then create those relationships in an authentic way. It is useful really for _____.

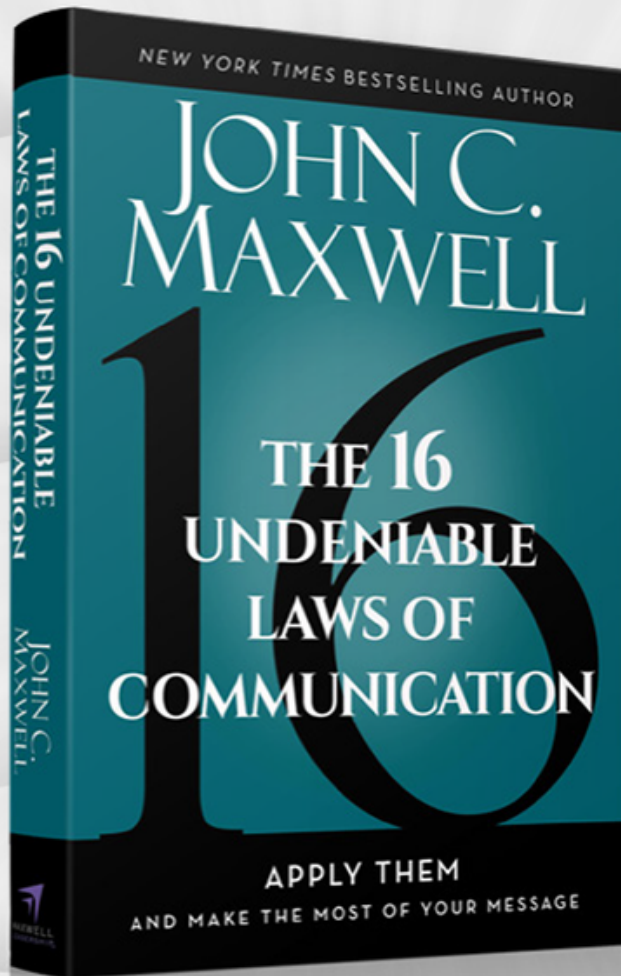

(33:10) It is all around 'What is the _____ of this team?' Do we know that? Do we know why we are all here and why we are going to work so hard? And have we phrased that purpose in a way that everyone sees themselves in it?

Answers:

- great questions
- research
- both parties
- shared purpose

NEW AND NOW AVAILABLE

FROM JOHN C. MAXWELL

SCAN ME

